Current research directions

Applications, methods and design questions inform one another rather than forming a fixed sequence.

The categories describe the current evidence base. Developing questions require application-specific assumptions, collaborators and validation.